The St. Louis American Indian Consortium

To Educators and Organizers,

St. Louis American Indian Consortium is a newly formed group dedicated to the preservation of the Native American culture & traditions. We have gathered together, as talented Native American families who do demonstrations and lectures tailored to the needs of schools, festivals, and organizations, craft classes, or helping other organizations with native activities. With a variety of talents we feel we can cover any needs that should arise in the St. Louis and surrounding areas.

Some of the Native talents offered by our consortium:

Cultural & historical lectures & discussions
craft & regalia lectures
Native storytelling
Brain tanned hides and demonstrations
Powwow arena director, Emcee, & other head staff
Arts, Craft, & regalia demonstrations
Dance demonstrations
Native craft stands
Native flute & native drums
Actors
frybread stands

Some of the places we have done programs for:

public and private Schools in MO. and IL. (K through college) *Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts *YMCA *YWCA *Festivals in MO., IL, IN., and AR. *National Museum of the American Indians (Smithsonian) in Washington DC *Cahokia Mounds *Our Lady of the Snows Shrine *Washington University *Area Powwows *History Museum of Oklahoma (more extensive list can be made available).

As Native American families in direct contact with our tribes, we bring traditions learned from our elders, stories heard from our grandparents and family amongst our tribes. Each of us has strong ties to our tribe and brings a real look at the true Native Americans, our culture and our history.

We would enjoy talking with, and working out a program to fit your school or organization. We are located in St. Louis and surrounding areas of Missouri and Illinois.

For more information please contact Kathy Dickerson (Kiowa tribe) at:
(314) 283-7763 or (314) 226-9883
Or email Kathy@kiowakat.com